February 24, 2010

Student Night

Dinner Speaker 1 Hour CPE

Speaker: Sue Danbom, Director of Training, Volt Workforce Solutions

Topic: Career Development Strategies - or - Looking Good When It Counts

It used to be easy to get a job...

1. Fix resume.
2. Submit to job postings.
3. Get job.

The changing economy and the social media scene have complicated things. If you're only utilizing the old techniques, chances are you will be left behind. Sue Danbom of Volt Workforce Solutions will discuss creating a new career strategy that will make you look good and appeal to employers whether you are entering the workforce for the first time or continuing to build your career.

Sue Danbom is the Director of Training of Professional Search for Volt Workforce Solutions. She trains executive recruiters (headhunters.) Her career in talent acquisition spans 17 years and she has seen vast changes in ways that companies and employees find each other. Sharing that information is a passion.

Sue writes and administers an internal web-site at Volt, she writes a blog for the Electronic Recruiting Exchange and will be speaking at the national convention of The Institute of Management Accountants this June.

On the home front, Sue lives on the Sammamish Plateau with Bob, her husband of 33 years, her twenty-three year old daughter, Laura and newly adopted canine son, Bailey Edward Danbom.

February 24 Meeting – Annual Student Night

The February dinner meeting will be our annual Student Night. Our special speaker for Student Night will be our very own Sue Danbom speaking on a topic which will be of interest to both our student guests and our members. Sue's topic is "Career Development Strategies - or - Looking Good When It Counts". Sue is Director of Training for Volt Workforce Solutions. She has spent 17 years in recruiting, specializing in Finance and Accounting. She was Volt's #1 Manager in Finance and Accounting recruiting for three consecutive years. See more of Sue's bio on page 1.

Accounting students from the colleges and universities in the area are invited. Email invitations and flyers have gone out and in-person invitations will be presented at UW and Seattle U. All other Seattle area students are also invited to attend. In addition to Sue's topic on career development strategies, the evening's program will also include a networking opportunity for student to meet accounting professionals from 5:30 to 6:30. The cost for dinner for students for this special event is $10. If you would like to attend, please make a reservation - see page 1 for information about reservations.

The meeting will also focus on our scholarship programs available to students. Our chapter is pleased to provide access to two sources of scholarship funds - the ASWA Seattle Chapter Scholarship Fund and the ASWA Educational Foundation (ASWAEF). May 15, 2010 is the application deadline for ASWA Seattle Chapter 2010-2011 Scholarships. March 1, 2010 is the application deadline for the May 2010 ASWAEF 2-year College Scholarships and Undergraduate Scholarships. Please go to: <http://www.aswaseattle.com/scholarships.cfm> for scholarship applications and details. We encourage members and associates to spread the word about our scholarship program!
